

383. Particular words are followed by particular prepositions. We say 'He died of fever', We do not say, 'He died through fever, or by fever, or owing to fever, or on account of fever, or with fever.'

Again, though we always say 'die of fever', we never say 'sick of fever', but always 'sick with fever', where 'with' and 'of' are both used in the sense of cause.
