- What do you think you are great at?
- What do other say you are great at?
- What do people like most about you?
- What makes you special?

Weakness:

That part of you where you need to work and be “a better version of yourself”

- What do you struggle with?
- What are other people better at?
- What do people complain about you?
- What would other people see as your weakness?

Opportunities:

- What are the new options available to upgrade your skills?
- Are their new opportunities in sight that match your qualifications and skills?
- Are there any volunteer positions that can be managed with present routine and help you to earn references.

Threats:

- What are the skills that job demands but you feel yourself lacking in them?
- Is there enough internal competition for the same job? Will you be able to distinguish yourself among other candidates?
- Is your network strong inside and outside your organization to gather reliable information?

SWOT Analysis Sample: I

Strengths:

- I am a quick learner and never make same mistake again.
- I enjoy my work. My area of interest and my work are same. That allows no room for negative feelings while achieving my targets.
- I take initiative for a new role and responsibility that helps me earn trust of my co-worker and seniors.
- My works are usually delivered on time as committed
- I am a resourceful person who maintains data for important contacts, websites, and relevant documents neatly tagged that come handy for my team.
- Time management is my biggest strength. I can handle multiple projects at the same time and finishing each within deadline.

Weakness:

- I trust people easily and suffer due to it.
- I am a straight speaker sometimes I can be insensitive without realizing it.
- I find it hard to give second chance to people who break my trust. Thus working with same person in team becomes agonizing for me.
- When given a deadline, I cannot think beyond the 'work on hand'. That takes toll on my health.
- I am poor in remembering important dates that matters to people around me. I usually get admonish for it.
- Sometimes I find myself not updated enough regarding new developments in my fields.

Opportunities:

- My present company acknowledges my experience and contribution.
- A new branch office of this company is coming up nearer my home. I might consider applying there and save my travelling time.
- I have enrolled in language training course on weekends. It will allow me to practice new skills on weekdays.
- I have earned references from this organization that will add credibility to my future career.

Threats:

- My fellow workers socialize regularly with the heads of other departments and appear more visible in organization than me.
- I find making presentations difficult. I rely on my team members and new management demands proper presentations to know the latest updates.
- New people joining organization appear more updated and better in presentation skill.
